Advanced Bowling Tracker Joins Tournament Sense

Founder Joseph Miller joins Tournament Sense as an advisor as the two bowling platforms come together

Milford, Massachusetts – November 1, 2026 – Tournament Sense, the bowling platform for bowlers, coaches, and tournament directors, today announced that Advanced Bowling Tracker (ABT) is now part of the Tournament Sense ecosystem. ABT is the detailed score-tracking and tournament app founded by Joseph Miller.

Bowlers have used Advanced Bowling Tracker for frame-by-frame scoring, league tracking, and tournament information. As part of Tournament Sense, ABT's features and community will help shape the next generation of the Tournament Sense apps. Joseph joins Tournament Sense as an advisor.

"Joseph built something bowlers really care about, and he built it with the same attention to detail we try to bring to Tournament Sense," said Luigi Danakos, founder of Tournament Sense. "Bringing ABT into Tournament Sense means its users get a platform that will keep growing, and our bowlers get the benefit of everything Joseph learned building ABT. I'm glad to have him in our corner as an advisor."

"Luigi and I share the same goal: to create the best tools for bowlers to understand and improve. I'm excited to combine our communities and support Luigi to continue this mission for thousands of bowlers today, and eventually millions in the future," said Joseph Miller, founder of Advanced Bowling Tracker.

What this means for ABT users

- Nothing changes today. Advanced Bowling Tracker will continue operating for all pro and free users.
- Your data comes with you. Tournament Sense plans to move ABT accounts and bowling history into Tournament Sense where possible.
- You'll hear from us first. ABT users will get plenty of notice and clear instructions before any changes to the ABT app.
